

Abstract of the Disclosure

A system and method for collecting and displaying object interaction on a target processor is provided which includes the steps of logging object interaction data on a target processor over a monitoring period, and displaying the object interaction data as a graph, the graph having a plurality of nodes and at least one line, each node being associated with a corresponding object, each line connecting two of the nodes and representing an interaction between the respective objects associated with the two nodes.